MYTHS AND FACTS

About shipping internationally

MYTH:

Exhibitions Cargo only ships to Mexico

FACT:

We ship to over 54 countries, including the top travel locations

MYTH:

You cannot do Chinese imports

FACT:

There are no restrictions regarding the place of manufacture

MYTH:

It is better to buy your merchandise at the destination site

FACT:

You can get better deals when you buy in advance, and you give a better experience to your attendees when you are directly involved in the process of picking your gifts

MYTH:

You can send high value items with a courier

FACT:

Couriers have restrictions regarding value and quantity of the items they ship. If the limits are exceeded the consignee will automatically be considered a regular importer and will be required to have an Import license. Curies do not process import licenses

MYTH:

You don't need insurance for your shipment, the shipping company will take care of it

FACT:

Your cargo goes through different weather conditions and travels a long distance through air, land or sea, or a combination of the three. Therefore, your products could be damaged. We strongly recommend hiring insurance, so you don't have to worry about it

MYTH:

When you hire a hotel for your event they are responsible to keep your boxes safely in a storage room

FACT:

Hotels are not responsible for their client's imports. You'll need to hire a logistics firm that has its own warehouses and representatives to deliver on the exact place you need it

MYTH:

You can send merchandise without consulting about restrictions or permits needed

FACT:

Each country has its own customs regulations that are changing constantly. If you do not send your goods with their proper permits, you'll risk having your products stuck in Customs

MYTH:

You can ship internationally without needing many days of preparation with a rush service

FACT:

You'll need at least 15 days to get the proper paperwork and have your cargo delivered on time and in the exact place you need it

FACT:

15 Days
